

Gene therapy for treating disease

The gene therapies being studied in hemophilia A & B use recombinant AAV vectors for in vivo, liver-directed gene transfer with the goal of achieving durable, endogenous expression of functional factor protein to restore hemostasis^{1,2}

